However things take a dark and sinister turn when he starts investigating a case of child cruelty. Notify me of new comments via email.

Labels: Berta Freistadt Judy Veal. He obtained this certificate after studying poetry at the Centre for many years, was very happy there and beloved by generations of students. The other characters, although not as lovingly fleshed out, are a nice mixture. Someone is killing scientists who breed medicine's "test tubes on four feet," the costly, genetically engineered laboratory mice that stand in for humans in thousands of medical research projects each year.

Desperate for something meaningful to do, he hones in on two old cases, where covering up of abuse is now well known, but the impact on the children is lifelong and devastating.
