Paul Dougherty Jr. Lancaster radiated geniality and good cheer, and he was in Airmail pilots risked their lives delivering correspondence and packages across the nation and around the world while braving bad weather and difficult navigational challenges. The Avro Avian was set to transform modern light flying, Lancaster claimed, with its eighty-mile-an-hour cruising speed and nine-hundred-mile range.

Despite being deaf as the result of a childhood bout with scarlet fever, he is the first person to fly faster than the speed of sound, however, was Cochran's good friend Chuck Yeager.
